This document summarizes various tuition waivers and residency classifications that may be applicable to students enrolling at Washington’s community and technical colleges.

Waivers fall into three main categories; those required by law, those required by the State Board and those that colleges are allowed to offer, but are not required to do so (optional waivers). In addition, some waivers are subject to a limitation on the total amount that can be waived by the community and technical college system.

Per RCW 28B.15.910, the amount waived for certain waivers cannot exceed 35% of the total amount of operating fees authorized to be collected by the community and technical college system. This is known as the 35% limit. Colleges may offer additional tuition waivers; however those are considered to be outside the 35% limit. In the summaries below, an additional notation of inside and outside the 35% limit is provided.

The definition of a resident or non-resident student is listed in statute. It is important to note that, under these definitions, some students are considered residents that may otherwise be considered non-residents. For the purposes of assessing tuition and fees properly, these students should be classified as residents rather than a non-resident receiving a non-resident differential waiver.

This document also summarizes information for the colleges regarding running start, residency classifications, and inactive tuition waivers.

Reciprocity – British Columbia (Fee Pay Status – 39) Statute: RCW 28B.15.756

Tuition Waiver: Waiver of nonresident tuition differential for residents of British Columbia.

Summary: Community and technical colleges may waive all or a portion of the nonresident tuition differential for British Columbia residents attending their colleges to the extent permitted by an agreement between the State Board for Community and Technical Colleges and appropriate officials and agencies in British Columbia that provides Washington residents the opportunity to enroll without payment of tuition or fees in excess of those charge to residents of British Columbia.

Nonresident differential is the difference between resident tuition (operating and building fees) and nonresident tuition (operating and building fees).

New in 2012 by ESSHB 2483: The authority to enter into an agreement with British Columbia now resides with the SBCTC instead of the HECB. All CTCs can offer this waiver upon completion of an agreement by the SBCTC.

This waiver is included in the 35% legislative limit.
